

Acknowledgments

The Australasian Study of Parliament Group wishes to express its gratitude to the following businesses and departments for their generous support for the activities of the Group, especially publication of Australasian Parliamentary Review.

- Macquarie Bank
- Department of Defence
- QANTAS
- Department of the House of Representatives
- Department of the Parliamentary Reporting Staff
- Department of the Parliamentary Library
- Department of the Senate

ASPG also appreciates a substantial grant from the revenues arising from publication and sale of J. R. Odgers, Australian Senate Practice, 6th edition, 1991.

Due to the publication of a Special Edition in May 2004, there is only one Journal in the Vol. 19 series: Spring 2004, referred to as Vol. 19(1).

Australasian Study of Parliament Group

Australasian Parliamentary Review is the official journal of Australasian Study of Parliament Group and is published at least twice a year. # Contributor Guidelines

All correspondence relating to the APR and all manuscripts of articles, reviews and research notes should be sent to:

Dr Elaine Thompson, The Editor,
Australasian Parliamentary Review,
School of Politics & International Relations
University of New South Wales 2052

email address: e.thompson@ozemail.com.au

All enquiries concerning subscriptions should be sent to the Secretary/Treasurer, Linda Atkinson, c/- ACT Legislative Assembly, Box 1020, GPO, Canberra, ACT, 2601.

Manuscripts. Please submit three copies of all article manuscripts. In addition please submit an electronic copy in RTF format. The name of the author and the author's affiliation should appear on a separate cover sheet together with the title of the article. All reference, or any means of identifying the author elsewhere, should be removed from the article to allow double blind refereeing.

Contributions (As well as reading these pages, please forward them to anyone helping you prepare your final text and references.)

- *use A4 page setting and double space your entire article.
- *make sure your text is unjustified (left aligned) before you print it out.
- *use -ise (organise, not organize). Do not change spelling in quotes.
- *use name-date system for citations — e.g. Black and Grey 2000; Leblanc et al. 2003. Beethoven 2004, pp. 1–100 — arranging multiple citations in date order.
- *use single quote marks, double within single, e.g. 'This is "an example" of material in quotes'.

Remember to:

- *make sure the APR has up-to-date address details for you as well as your correct email and institutional affiliation details.#
- *make sure you have included your abstract (approx. 150 words in length).
- *use end notes, numbered consecutively at the end of the article rather than at the bottom of each page.
- *avoid footnotes. Either incorporate into the body of the text if relevant, drop altogether or include in an acknowledgments sections at the end of the article.
- *length for Main Articles 4000–6000 words.
- *the final hard copy version of your manuscript should match its electronic version in every respect. If you believe this not to be the case, please contact the APR editor for advice.
- *shorter pieces, and commentary will be considered. Such pieces would not normally be referred.
- *in exceptional cases, for example, an important major piece of research, articles of up to 10,000 words will also be considered.
- *please provide a brief biographical note and full mailing and email address.
- *allow at least three months for review and consideration to be completed.

Here is an example of APR's preferred style for ruling up tables:

TABLE 1 An example

| Heading 1 | Heading 2 | Heading 3 |
|-----------|-----------|-----------|
| 0.0       | 00.0      | 000       |
| 00.0      | 0.0       | 00        |
| 00.0      | 0.0       | 0         |

These details should be sent to the editor who will then update the APR's records.

Two notes follow, one on capitalisation, the other on reference style.

CAPITALISATION Use capitals sparingly and consistently throughout your manuscript. As a general rule, use upper case (capitals) for specific organisations/entities and job titles and lower case for functions or generic terms.

For example:

- the Treaty for the Maastricht Treaty; the Council for the Council of Ministers but otherwise treaty, council;
- the Minister, the Secretary of State, etc. when naming specific government ministers, but otherwise minister or secretary of state
- e.g. the Spanish Foreign Minister but foreign ministers of the EU;
- Parliament but parliamentary;
- government but the Chirac Government.
