CONFERENCE THEME

Democracy is the cornerstone of modern governance in our jurisdictions. It promotes individual freedoms, equality, and the right to participate in the open decision-making processes that shape our society. Despite its ideals, democracy is facing challenges on several fronts in the 21st century.

Challenges include the implications of new technologies, the proliferation of mis and disinformation, and declining trust and engagement. In light of these challenges, parliaments, parliamentarians and those who support the work of parliament face the challenge of how to respond to protect and preserve democratic values.

The conference will explore the theme of parliaments when democracy is under challenge. Under this theme, the presenters will explore a wide-range of topics such as:

- the unique value of parliamentary systems of government in the pursuit of democratic ideals
- the role of the parliamentary procedures in strengthening, preserving and/or hindering democracy
- modern risks and challenges to parliamentary democracy
- the interaction between the three of arms of government – the legislature, the executive and the judiciary – in maintaining democracy
- civic engagement in parliamentary and democratic processes
- accountability and transparency in democratic governance.
